What Would Prayut Do? This seems to be one of the newest guessing games that has popped up Recently. Everyday, one can wake-up and read the Fresh ideas, concerns, and plans that are being rolled out by the government. Last month the BP News letter touched briefly on the "Auspicious Nature" for which the new leadership approached everything. Fortune tellers, ghosts, magic rings and fung shui were all taking place in certain government actions. That aside, the newest NEWS gets even better: Upon the murder of two tourists in Koh Tao, the Ministry of Tourism is actually planning on fitting all the foreign visitors to the islands and resort areas with a "Data Bracelet" in hopes that it will somehow help solve the problem of murders. They are planning "Buddy systems" where travelers are never alone, a crack-downs on late night events that can find drunk farangs walking around the beaches in the moon light, and Walk way check points. The mind frame and idea is a little over the rainbow if you ask most people and does not really focus on what is the REAL problem: That Bad People do bad things. The Other NEW WWPD magical moment came when Prayut voiced that he wanted the Thai "Soap Operas" to change their scripts to "Thai wholesome and cultural" plots and said he would even pen them himself! One Real plot he already said he would want is as follows: "Two Foreign Families come to Thailand to visit and they meet each other and come to love each other".. Sounds like a Great Plot! Doesn't the Government have enough problems without going into penning soaps? Soaps are designed to take normal people out of their mundane and drab life by using drama, violence, cheating, unexpected pregnant women and such. That is what a Soap Opera does...

Anyway— The Fun is NOW waking up everyday and seeing WWPD? It is better than any entertainment a Soap would provide!! Returning happiness to Thailand... one bar of soap at a time!

Thailand “The land of Second Chins” :))

When I first came to Thailand (20 years ago)— I was amazed by the slim and petite world I saw before me— It was truly amazing! Recently however, I find myself in a state of shock as I look around the BTS or Malls and see more and more BIG Thais. A recent study by the Institute of Thai Health found that 43 % of Thai women are Over weight. Thailand now ranks second out all of the SE countries for overweight people (Malaysia ranks #1). Then it became more apparent: My trip to Starbucks found me sitting behind a long line of semi chunky Thai ladies all ordering Triple Carmelo Choc-o-Latte Flappa- a— what the fuck is that-? chinos... In the Mall, groups of Thais grabbing large boxes of Crispy crème delights..KFC, McD, Pizza Company all delivering there finest High Calorie Meals by motorcycles... The Fast-food Nation taking over!! THEN you have the other problem: Go into any mall and you will see multiple “Weight loss clinics” that promote pills, teas, body wraps, and other Magical weight loss potions and lotions. They sell little wig-gles boards that claim to help a person lose weight just by standing on a jiggle machine while watching TV. The truth is that the only way to keep slim is working out and maintaining a semi decent diet (or doing coke) Rubbing lotion and drinking teas that make you shit all day is NOT going to help you get rid of that access weight. The BP girls have even been warned!! The Fat police are going to hand out some tickets soon for double wide parking!

Promotion of healthy eating and semi active lifestyles is now part of the program and I hope that the ladies can see that we are only trying to help.. Besides: Facebook Selfies are not flattering when you have a double chin and a mustard stain on your shirt... PLEASE don't turn into America Thailand!!! PLEASE!!!
